Dear Friends,

As winter gives way to spring, the Kalamazoo Institute of Arts and the Kirk Newman Art School are moving into a season defined by innovation, creativity, and connection. There is so much ahead, and I'm excited to share what's unfolding across our galleries, classrooms, and community spaces.

On February 7, we open Future Now: Virtual Sneakers to Cutting-Edge Kicks, co-organized by the American Federation of Arts and the Bata Shoe Museum, and curated by Elizabeth Semmelhack, Director and Senior Curator of the Bata Shoe Museum. This groundbreaking exhibition brings together almost seventy visionary footwear designs—from 3D-printed shoes and sustainable materials to works that exist entirely in virtual space. Future Now sits at the intersection of art, technology, design, and culture, inviting visitors of all ages to consider how creativity is shaping what comes next.

Beyond the galleries, Future Now will come alive across our full campus—through Museum Education experiences and hands-on learning in KNAS. This season, we're offering programs that invite guests to explore the themes of design, technology, sustainability, and self-expression through talks, workshops, community days, and interactive experiences. Whether a child is visiting on a school tour, a teen is designing their own shoe concept, or an adult is exploring something new in the studios, we want every visitor to feel the excitement of seeing artistry and innovation up close—and to leave with fresh ideas about what art can be, and who it's for.

You're also invited to join us on March 20 for Future: REMIX, an evening inspired by the exhibition featuring DJs, dancing, a cash bar, and a playful celebration of personal style—wear your favorite kicks and be part of the fun. Earlier in the season, don't miss our annual Hands On event on March 6, where visitors can make and take art in a lively, welcoming atmosphere.

Two beloved exhibitions celebrating young artists in our region also return this spring: Young Artists of Kalamazoo County, opening February 21, and the High School Area Show, opening April 11. These exhibitions are powerful reminders of why access to art matters—especially for young people, who see their artistic voices valued and displayed in a museum setting, often for the first time.

Looking ahead, we remain committed to access and belonging. Free Thursdays will continue in 2026 thanks to generous support from the Art Bridges Foundation's Access for All program and the Efroymson Family Fund.

Thank you for being part of this vibrant community and for supporting the KIA as we continue to look forward—one thoughtful, imaginative step at a time. I hope to see you in the galleries, studios, and at one of our many programs this season.

Warmly,

Michelle Hargrave
Executive Director

NEWS & NOTES

Join us on Friday, March 6, for Our Annual Hands On Event

“Make it and take it all in one night” and join us for the School’s Hands On event as it returns this spring during Art Hop. This beloved evening features activities and projects reflecting the different media students can experience in Kirk Newman Art School classes. Try your hand at drawing, pottery wheel throwing, printmaking projects, welding, spinning yarn, and more. A small fee will be charged for each activity to help cover the costs of supplies. Join us for a night of fun and camaraderie! Light snacks will be available.

Celebrating our 2025-26 KNAS Residents

Join us in celebrating this year’s Post-Baccalaureate Residents in the Kirk Newman Art School while we also honor ten years of this wildly successful program that has supported the growth and advancement of nearly 80 emerging artists. This year’s Residents have grown tremendously over the course of nine months in the KNAS studios. They will proudly display their efforts in an exhibition in the School Commons in May with an opening reception on May 1.

Artist Spotlight

The KIA is excited to announce the installation of Sole Lines, 2023 by Bronx-based artist Nick La Marca. This site-specific mixed-media installation will be on view in our lobby as a special complement to Future Now: Virtual Sneakers to Cutting-Edge Kicks. Sole Lines draws on the familiar forms of telephone poles—a structure built for connection—and sneakers to explore the interplay between the collective and the individual, between global pop culture and personal identity.

La Marca’s installation of suspended sneakers charts not only the artist’s evolving relationship with his own collection of footwear but also the broader narratives surrounding contemporary sneaker culture, particularly within BIPOC communities. In La Marca’s hands, shoes become deeply personal objects that can be portraits of their wearers, while also serving as reflections about access, community, memory, and time.

Cecilia Root

Cecilia Root joins the KIA as our new Gallery Shop Manager. She is a graduate of Western Michigan University, where she earned a bachelor's degree in Cultural Anthropology. During her studies she participated in a number of research projects with Dr. Bilinda Straight focusing on the relationship of war and nutrition within Samburu communities in Northern Kenya. Cecilia has more than a decade of experience in sales, retail, e-commerce operations, and visual merchandising. Her previous professional experience includes managing the Kalamazoo State Theatre's Box Office, downtown businesses including Plata y Oro Jewelry and Teel Jewelers, and big box stores such as Forever 21/XXI. Cecilia has also volunteered at the Kalamazoo Valley Museum and at the Gilmore Car Museum. She is delighted to join the team and hopes to see you at the shop!

Julie Hoogland

Julie Hoogland is the KIA's new Museum Registrar. She holds a master's degree in art history and museum studies from the University of Denver and a Bachelor of Arts in Art and Art History from Montana State University–Billings. Julie brings more than 15 years of professional experience in collections management, database administration, project management, and the care and preservation of a wide range of artworks and objects. Before joining the KIA, she served as the Collections Manager at the Palm Springs Art Museum. Her previous experience also includes roles at the Chrysler Museum of Art in Norfolk, VA; the Anchorage Museum in Anchorage, AK; and the Roswell Museum and Art Center in Roswell, NM. Julie lives in Portage with her husband and their two cats Pluto and Yuki.

In Memoriam: Robert Salisbury

Born in Brooklyn, New York, Bob's early life set the foundation for a career marked by service, leadership, and long-term community involvement. Bob served in the United States Air Force as an F-100 Super Sabre pilot for six years, including a combat tour in Vietnam from 1967 to 1968. Following active duty, he continued his military service in the Air Force Reserve for an additional 15 years, retiring with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

In 1974, Bob joined The Upjohn Company in Portage, Michigan, beginning a long and distinguished corporate career. In 1988, he was appointed Chief Financial Officer and later served as Executive Vice President and CFO of Pharmacia & Upjohn, a role he held until his retirement in 1998.

During his retirement Bob enjoyed golf, hiking, biking, and travel. Among his personal achievements, Bob counted climbing Mount Kilimanjaro at age 62 as one of his proudest accomplishments, a testament to his determination and adventurous spirit.

While living in Portage with his family, Bob became deeply involved in philanthropic work throughout the Kalamazoo community, lending his expertise and service to organizations such as United Way of Kalamazoo, the Kalamazoo Foundation, and Kalamazoo Institute of Arts.

For many years he served on the Board of Directors for the KIA, and was a long-time member and chair of the KIA Endowment Committee, helping to support the long-term sustainability and future growth of the organization. Bob's patience, kindness, and steady presence helped guide decisions for the KIA with wisdom, dedication, and deep care for the mission, ensuring future generations would continue to experience the transformative power of art in our community and beyond.

Bob and his wife Linda recently donated a work by renowned glass artist Dale Chihuly to the Kalamazoo Institute of Arts. Prussian Blue Persian with Black Lip Wrap (1990) is part of Chihuly's celebrated Persian series, known for its vibrant color and expressive, undulating forms. The Persian series features irregular, rippling patterns created through layered rings of trailed glass, resulting in bowl-like and platter-like forms that emphasize movement, color, and organic shape. This donation adds a significant example of Chihuly's work to the KIA collection and reflects Bob and Linda's continued commitment to supporting the arts.

Bob's life was defined by service and integrity. The KIA is stronger today and better prepared for the future through his care, leadership, and dedication. Bob passed away on October 20, 2025, surrounded by his loving family. He will be greatly missed.

Member Spotlight

The Merze Tate Explorers began in 2008 as a grassroots project to provide girls in grades 6th–12th hands-on experiences as travel writers, videographers, photographers, and storytellers. Sonya Hollins, Founder and Executive Director, based the original program on the Travel Club founded by Merze Tate, a 1927 graduate of Western Michigan University. Tate became the first African American graduate of Oxford University among many other firsts locally and abroad. It was Dr. Tate's legacy, perseverance, and determination to break barriers that provided Hollins the perfect role model for young girls.

The Merze Tate Explorers have been a non-profit member of the KIA since 2023. The organization has participated in art camps, volunteered as arts and crafts instructors at the summer Arts Fair, in addition to frequent KIA field trips, personal gallery tours, and even had the opportunity to explore the recent exhibition An Infinite Constellation of Love with the artist JooYoung Choi, who sat down with Explorer reporters for an exclusive interview. The purpose of the Merze Tate Explorers seamlessly connects with the work of the Kalamazoo Institute of Arts. "Art is expression and voice. Art is storytelling," Sonya says. "There is a commonality between storytelling through media and storytelling through art." This shared belief in creativity, communication, and expression anchors the Explorers' relationship with the KIA. Sonya says one of the most rewarding parts of her work is introducing the young journalists to successful women of color in the community and beyond, helping them see their own potential and possibilities for future representation and success.

to the KIA to tour the galleries. These field trips helped spark her appreciation for art and community spaces. Today, that early sense of belonging has come full circle through her leadership, philanthropy, and advocacy.

Sonya has served on the KIA's Board of Directors for nearly two years, where she enjoys contributing to the behind-the-scenes decisions that help the organization grow alongside its community. Participating in that work, she says, has deepened her understanding of how museums evolve and stay relevant to the people they serve. Sonya also believes strongly in the value of nonprofit membership at the KIA. She encourages Kalamazoo-area organizations to take advantage of this opportunity, not only as an investment in the arts, but as a way to help build a foundation of appreciation, creativity, and philanthropy across the region.

"When we open the doors of exposure to students, they can see into worlds they may otherwise have never imagined. The KIA is a gem many of them pass by frequently. As members, they have access and the ability to see themselves as more than spectators."

Collection Highlight

Tom Uttech is inspired by the woodland environment found in his native Wisconsin and nearby North Woods wilderness areas in Minnesota and Ontario. Some call his work a form of magic realism given its invocation of spirituality rooted in the sublime experience of nature and its frequent presentation of animal encounters that seem surreal or impossible. In this print, a black bear and an unusual number of owls all stare in the same direction, leaving the viewer with the unsettling feeling that they may be an intruder in this untamed landscape. The sunset amplifies this impression, casting the scene in an uncanny hazy glow. Implicit in many of his works seems to be the question of why the real world is not as replete with animals as his pictures are—a query that suggests a quiet critique of humans’ impact on the natural landscape.

An unusual aspect of Uttech’s work is his interest in handmade wooden frames, one of which he has imagined here in print form. Explains the artist: “One of the fondest memories... has been to spend time in old cabins and resorts in northern Wisconsin. Many of these are paneled with knotty pine boards. These boards have become a rich transparent reddish-brown color because of the passage of time. They have accumulated a romantic history.” Like many of Uttech’s real frames, the imagined frame in Ajidamoo Minis is slightly whimsical, showing some of the animals in the scene itself and including, even, the absurd image of a bear rowing a canoe.

Ajidamoo is the Anishinaabe (Ojibwe) term for a red squirrel, while minis means island. Although there is a Squirrel Island in Wisconsin, it is unlikely that Uttech’s print is meant to represent that particular place. He typically works in his studio from memory, and his works are therefore imaginative interpretations of the experience of nature rather than documents of particular places. He explains his naming process: “I became good friends with a fellow professor... who headed the Indian Studies Department... [and] had a copy of... a lexicon of the Ojibwe language... created in the 1500s... I... either think of something that I want the painting to be about in English and then find an Ojibwe translation, or else... go to the Ojibwe section and look for a word that looks beautiful.” Uttech’s use of Anishinaabe language in the print’s title reflects the greater debt his art owes to Indigenous cultural traditions. By reverentially representing the flora and fauna of the region and depicting experiences of nature as awe-inspiring, he invokes the spiritual significance of the natural world to the Anishinaabe, who believe that all things in the natural world are interconnected.

Tom Uttech, Ajidamoo Minis, 2005, seven-color lithograph. Collection of the Kalamazoo Institute of Arts; Purchased with funds given by Zoe Schuitmaker in honor of her husband Harold Schuitmaker on the occasion of his birthday, 2010.41.

Future Now: Virtual Sneakers to Cutting-Edge Kicks

FEBRUARY 7-JUNE 7, 2026

Future Now: Virtual Sneakers to Cutting-Edge Kicks is a groundbreaking new exhibition featuring almost 70 futuristic footwear designs pushing the boundaries of what footwear can be. Exhibiting an incredible mix of fashion, design, gaming, new media, architecture, and material arts as well as sustainable and collaborative practices, the exhibition showcases work by designers as diverse as Rem D. Koolhaas and Zaha Hadid, innovators Mr. Bailey and Salehe Bembury, as well as designs made in collaboration with fashion icons Rick Owens, Stella McCartney, and Yohji Yamamoto, and top gaming and innovation companies such as PlayStation, Gravity Sketch, and more. Future Now features sections exploring Innovation, Sustainability, Transformative, and Virtual shoes. Exhibition highlights include the self-lacing Nike MAG (first conceived for the movie Back to the Future Part II), digitally designed and 3D-printed shoes, sneakers made from mushroom leather and reclaimed ocean plastics, virtual footwear, and more.

The exhibition is co-organized by the American Federation of Arts and the Bata Shoe Museum, and curated by Elizabeth Semmelhack, Director and Senior Curator of the Bata Shoe Museum.

This exhibition at the KIA is made possible, in part, with generous support from:

Taekyeom Lee: Designed, Printed & Fired

THROUGH MARCH 8, 2026

Taekyeom Lee: Designed, Printed & Fired illuminates the artist's innovative practice, which exists at the intersection of 3D printing technology and traditional ceramic making. Taekyeom's research and creative practice focus on making graphic design a more inclusive, multisensory, and interactive experience, and challenges conventional views of design as being a flat, vision-centered, screen- or paper-based medium. The combining of ceramics and graphic design via a variety of materials, offers unique opportunities for visual and physical exploration. Designed, Printed & Fired reveals Taekyeom's process of creating printed and tactile imagery on textured surfaces across different media, while considering themes of culture, identity, and memory. The juxtaposition of cutting-edge technology and hands-on craftsmanship, investigates if collaborations between human creativity and technology is truly a subversion of the idea of "manmade." Taekyeom invites visitors to engage the visual and tactile senses with his designs. In doing so, Designed, Printed & Fired asks viewers to reconsider the sensory and material aspects of design and to contemplate the myriad and new forms that can arise to create more accessible and engaging experiences for all.

From Cobalt to Indigo: The Power of Blue in East Asia

MARCH 28–JULY 12, 2026

From Cobalt to Indigo: The Power of Blue in East Asia is an exploration of one of the most enduring and influential colors in global art history. Spanning centuries of Chinese and Japanese creativity, the exhibition traces how the color blue—once among the rarest and most prized pigments—shaped artistic innovation, cultural exchange, and aesthetic identity across East Asia.

From the luminous depths of cobalt-painted porcelain to the brilliance of carved lapis lazuli and the bold Prussian blue of Japanese ukiyo-e prints, this exhibition brings together works that illuminate the remarkable journey of blue across materials and artistic traditions. From Cobalt to Indigo will explore symbolism, craftsmanship, technological advancements, and cross-cultural influences. It showcases blue as both a material and an evolving metaphor. This exhibition invites audiences to see a familiar color anew and to experience the profound beauty and cultural resonance of blue in East Asian art.

High School Area Show

APRIL 11-MAY 10, 2026

The High School Area Show is a juried exhibition featuring the artwork of high school artists from Kalamazoo and its surrounding counties. This show provides students with opportunities to not only show their work in a museum, but also the chance to win prizes and scholarships. The KIA is proud to host this annual exhibition committed to nurturing emerging talent and expanding access to meaningful arts experiences for young people.

This year's juror is Ginger Owen-Murakami. Owen-Murakami's artwork reflects narratives of family history, race, gender, and culture. Her practice includes installation, sculpture, and various photographic methods. She is currently a Professor of Photography at Western Michigan University's Gwen Frostic School of Art.

The show is open to high school students residing in Allegan, Barry, Berrien, Branch, Calhoun, Cass, Kalamazoo, St. Joseph, and Van Buren counties. Students can submit up to two works online through CaFE (callforentry.org). Submissions are being accepted now through February 10. For more information on how to submit, visit kiarts.org/student-exhibitions or email museumed@kiarts.org.

Gallery Gathering: Charles Henry Alston's Untitled (Couple)

Thursday, February 5, 5:30–6pm

During this Gallery Gathering, we will take a closer look at Charles Henry Alston's Untitled (Couple), said to have been inspired by Langston Hughes' 1925 poem "The Weary Blues." An original member of the Abstract Expressionist movement, Alston was a painter, muralist, sculptor, illustrator, and educator, as well as the founder of two major African American art collectives, 306 and Spiral. Join us to discuss Untitled (Couple) and to learn more about this trailblazing artist of the Harlem Renaissance.

ArtBreak: Film Screening: The People Could Fly

Wednesday, February 11,

Noon–1pm

The People Could Fly is a poetic look into the history of Black gathering spaces in Louisville, KY, from the 1960s to mid-2000s. Intimate video portraits reveal the ritual of skating and how roller rinks emerged as sanctuaries for Black culture. This short documentary explores the magic conjured by one community as an act of resistance in the face of segregation. Directed by Imani Denison, The People Could Fly was co-produced by PBS POV Films and Chicken & Egg Films. It has a run time of 24 minutes.

Film Screening: Through a Lens Darkly

Thursday, February 5, 6–7:30pm

The first documentary to explore the role of photography in shaping the identities, aspirations, and social emergence of African Americans, Through a Lens Darkly probes the recesses of American history, bringing to light images captured by African American photographers that have been suppressed, forgotten, and lost. These images reveal a complex and nuanced view of American culture and society and its founding ideals. Directed by Thomas Allen Harris, the film has a run time of 90 minutes.

Book Discussion: Kicks: The Great American Story of Sneakers by Nicholas Smith

Wednesday, February 18, 2–3pm

Author Nicholas Smith examines the history, innovation, and societal impact of sneakers in American life through marketing, economic, and cultural trends. Smith weaves together a story of how the sneaker evolved over the course of a century. As production methods were revolutionized, the perception of this iconic footwear shifted as well, making them into must-have shoes. Themes in this book will tie into Future Now.

ArtBreak: The Art and Life of Hughie Lee-Smith

Wednesday, March 25, 12–1pm

Hughie Lee-Smith was a 20th century African American painter and art instructor. Growing up in the Midwest, he created a prolific collection of paintings that predominantly featured figures in urban and rural settings. Lee-Smith's often enigmatic works explored themes of isolation, expectation, and loneliness. Regrettably, he was not as well recognized as many of his contemporaries. During this ArtBreak talk, learn more about this remarkable artist with KIA docent Dr. Sam Grossman, then visit our lower level galleries to view Lee-Smith's The Spectators.

Artful Evening: Sneaker Culture Night

Thursday, March 26, 5:30–8pm

Join us for Sneaker Culture Night featuring music, food, and an engaging presentation. Dr. Delisia Matthews will share her research on sneaker culture by highlighting its historical roots, the unique language and behaviors of consumers, and the deep ties of the culture to music. Additionally, this discussion will explore how sneaker collecting connects to fatherhood and legacy, while inviting the audience to connect through their own sneaker narratives.

Book Discussion: Sneaker Marauders: Poems by Ran Walker and Van G. Garrett

Wednesday, May 20, 2–3pm

This short collaboration celebrates sneaker culture through poetry. Consisting of two parts, part one is a micro saga-in verse about a quest to find sneakers but yields an even great discovery beyond shoes. Part two is a collection of prose poems, a kind of mixtape, which explores many aspects of sneaker culture from overarching artistic reflections to personal ties to footwear. Themes in this book will tie into Future Now.

KALAMAZOO ART LEAGUE

Kalamazoo Art League continues into 2026 with more intriguing speakers and events. Don't miss the Food as Art program in which area chefs create a colorful palette of appetizers and desserts that relate to the theme of each lecture.

Art League membership is $45 and open to any KIA member. At this point during the season, you can join for half price and enjoy the three remaining lectures for free. For more information, visit KalamazooArtLeague.org.

Jonah Elijah: Beyond Perspective

Wednesday, February 4, 6pm

Reception follows lecture

Free for Art League Members, $10 KIA members, $12 public, $3 students

A native of Houston's Third Ward, Texas, Jonah's work transcends time, drawing upon his personal memories and upbringing. He delves deep into identity, through mediums of portraiture, language, and mass media engaging with the past, employing found objects charged with meaning, such as sneakers, televisions, and artifacts, as symbolic metaphors for the dynamic experiences they represent.

Jonah Elijah

Mark Joshua Epstein: "Works on Paper"

Wednesday, April 29, 10am

Reception follows lecture

Free for Art League Members, $10 KIA members, $12 public, $3 students

Epstein's work formulates an abstract visual language embedded with markers of personal history and cultural identity. The simultaneously discordant and harmonious shapes that play across the surfaces of his work encode reference points drawn from aspects of his Jewish and queer identities, inviting questions about the coordinates where they may intersect.

SPRING 2026

VISITING ARTIST DEMONSTRATIONS & ARTSTREAM NOMADIC GALLERY

Since 2001, the Artstream Nomadic Gallery has brought the best of contemporary studio pottery to communities across the country, showcasing a broad range of objects, styles, practices, and makers. Housed in a restored 1967 Airstream, this unique travelling gallery will make a stop at the KIA for a two-day presentation following a visit to the annual National Council on Education for the Ceramic Arts (NCECA) conference in Detroit. While at the KIA on April 2–3, the KNAS Ceramics Department is pleased to feature ceramic demonstrations by renowned ceramic artists traveling with the Artstream Nomadic Gallery. Engaging demonstrations by Justin D'Onofrio, Lorna Meaden, and Lisa Orr aim to highlight the technical and aesthetic diversity of the ceramics field. In addition to these presentations, the Artstream Nomadic Gallery will be open for viewing in the Lovell Street parking lot at the KIA. Those interested in attending the ceramic presentations must register by March 31. A 60-minute break will occur each day.

DRAWING PORTRAITS FROM LIFE

Adventure into the art of drawing portraits from life with the technique of chiaroscuro, an Italian word meaning "light-dark." Using Conté crayon and pastel pencils on toned paper can create the illusion of volume, modeling, and depth using the drama of light. Among the masters who used this technique were da Vinci, Rembrandt, and Vermeer. Discover how life studies impact studio work and the potential beauty with simplicity of medium.

2026 SUMMER VISITING ARTIST WORKSHOP WITH JULIA WHITNEY BARNES — SOLD OUT!

CYANOTYPE: BEYOND BLUE AND WHITE

In this special three-day cyanotype intensive, students will learn how to create painterly cyanotype-based works. They will start with an intro/refreshers on the basics of how to make cyanotype prints by mixing chemistry, coating paper and/or fabric, and developing prints using the sun and UV light. The workshop will then cover how to print using fresh and pressed plants, three-dimensional objects (lace, string, plastic bags, glass jars, jewelry, etc.), paper cutouts, and how to combine media with photographic negatives. Through the process, experimental techniques will also be covered including multicolor wet cyanotype and toning with a variety of materials. Demonstrations will include altering cyanotypes with paints, collage, and multiple exposures. Students will learn how to combine techniques both during the creation of the print and after it has been printed. Previous cyanotype experience is not required, though a background in it is helpful. Visiting artist Julia Whitney Barnes is based in New York's Hudson Valley and works in a variety of media including cyanotypes, watercolor, oil painting, and ceramic sculpture. She approaches the cyanotype medium as someone painting with light.

BEGINNING AND INTERMEDIATE SCREENPRINTING

Learn the process of screenprinting and develop your skills into multi-layer prints. Sessions include individualized instruction with plenty of work-time in the studio. Students can screenprint on paper or fabric to make their own prints, cards, posters or gifts. More advanced students can explore screenprinting as a fine art medium, emphasizing multiple colors, experimental substrates, and as an element in collage. Bring drawings, photos, work-in-progress, or ideas to the first class.

WATERCOLOR MONOTYPE WORKSHOP

Students will learn how to create a cohesive series of one-of-a-kind prints by making stencils, drawing, and applying watercolors directly onto vellum plates, then print them onto Japanese and Western papers with the etching press. Learn how to build up layers of texture and visual interest by printing multiple plates at once in addition to blending colors, overlapping stencils, and incorporating collage elements to achieve a range of effects.
